

My dear fellow, of course I'll come. I want to take away a good impression of America. But really, you know, I thought Fifth Avenue was where all the society people lived.

"Society, my dear boy, all society?" said Seymour. "Come to-morrow, and I'll introduce you to some first-class people. I'll have some good boys there, you may depend on it."

And so the plot was laid. On the following afternoon at 5 o'clock Mr. Lee put in a prompt appearance at an East Side club. He was met by Mr. Seymour and William J. Florence, both old personal friends, and conducted by them to the waiting hall.

The table was spread, and lounging about were Neil Bryant, Nelson Seymour, Billy Birch, Chris Connor, and one or two other well-known sporting characters. All were dressed in a flashy, fashionable style, and all were introduced to Mr. Lee by the two who were his friends. Mr. Lee was a little surprised at the English style of the party, but he was not at all surprised at the familiarity of the introductions. He was a little surprised at the familiarity of the introductions. He was a little surprised at the familiarity of the introductions.

FRIDAY EVENING, December 27, being St. John's day, the Masonic fraternity of this city had made arrangements to celebrate the same in a fitting manner. At an early hour the Masons and their ladies began to assemble at Masonic hall, and by 7 o'clock the hall was full to overflowing. The evening's exercises were commenced by installing the officers of Cairo lodge, No. 237, Delta lodge, No. 568, and of Cairo Council, No. 24. After the installation, Rev. Mr. Coan delivered an address, which was to the point and was listened to with much interest. After the address the assemblage spent a short time in secret intercourse and then repaired to the St. Charles, where a beautiful banquet had been spread by the jovial, good-natured host, Rexford. After the banquet the multitude listened with interest to eloquent speeches by Messrs. F. W. Barclay, Antrim, Bixby, McEwen, Lounsbury, Whitlock, Phillips, and other able and eloquent speakers too numerous to mention, after which the multitude retired from the banquet room, but not without leaving sufficient traces of their reign behind, and in high praise of Mr. Rexford and his efficient staff. A number of the ladies and gentlemen returned to Masonic hall, where with the aid of Prof. Eisenburg an hour or so was spent very pleasantly in terpsichorean amusements. Altogether the affair was a success, and will long be remembered by those who participated.

—Remember
The Rough and Ready
Ball,
New Year's Eve.
—County court adjourned yesterday.
—Drift-wood is running down the Ohio river since the rise.
—Dr. Wood is the county physician for the next twelve months.
—Mississippi river ice is now being cut, clear as crystal and seven inches thick.
—Col. George Bearden of the Mississippi Extension railroad, is in town.
—About noon yesterday, the ice and snow, in and about the city began to thaw.
—Preaching at the Methodist church to-morrow morning and evening by the pastor. Sunday school at 3 o'clock.
—A number of the Masons of Mound city attended the banquet at the St. Charles on Monday night.
—A case of small-pox developed itself yesterday in a house near the gas-house, occupied by colored people.
—Cunningham runs an express wagon, arranged for carrying passengers, from and to the Cairo and Vincennes railroad depot.
—The city livery stables are all open, and business goes on in them as in the days prior to the appearance of the epidemic.
—Mr. W. G. Cary has been awarded the contract for furnishing coffins and burying the dead paupers of the county.
—Jno. Q. Harman is now practicing law. Yesterday Mr. Harman was successful in a suit before the county court.
—Business at the express office was lively yesterday. Mr. Pink and his assistants were kept busy all the time. Large quantities of goods are being shipped by the express companies.
—The Masonic banquet at the St. Charles hotel on Friday night was a success. Quite a number of strangers were present.
—John Cahill was buried yesterday afternoon. His remains were taken to Villa Ridge for interment, and a large number of friends and acquaintances paid them the last solemn duties of respect.
—Jack Winter is the possessor of a bear, direct from the wilds of Arkansas. The animal is dead and a slice of it will make good eating for New Year's day. Jack intends to cut it up and dispense it at reasonable prices, to his numerous customers on that day.
—And still they come. Milliken Brothers of Paducah, Kentucky, have opened a commission house in the Widows' block, Ohio levee. Flour is their specialty.
—St. Louis is paying a dollar per bushel for coal, and it is difficult to get, at that price. Other cities complain of a scarcity of this article of fuel also, but the people of Cairo are supplied at their doors with all they want at $5 per ton.
—Don't forget
The Rough and Ready's Ball
At Scheel's Hall,
On New Year's Eve.
—The steamboat Glasgow has a large and prominent sign. The Glasgow is the Nashville and Northwestern R. R. transfer boat, and left this port on her second trip, loaded to the guards.
—And still we are a moral city. For two days not a single case has been noticed in the precincts of the police court, where Justice holds her even scales. No drunkenness, no stealing, no fighting, no vagrancy, no big, no little sins have caused any arrests to be made for two whole days. The fellows who make things lively in the police courts are either frozen up or reformed.
—St. Peter's Church, Mound City, will give a concert and festival in Stok's hall on New Year's night. Extensive preparations have been made, and it is intended that the occasion shall be specially entertaining and pleasant. The managers are arranging with Col. Wood of the Cairo and Vincennes railroad, to have a special train run from this city on Wednesday night, and the Cairo people are cordially invited to go up to Mound City on the
